Company. Further, such incidences may expose our Company to liabilities and claims, adversely affect our reputation, growth and profitability.

Players in this industry generally compete with each other on key attributes such as technical competence, quality of products, distribution network, pricing and timely delivery. Some of our competitors may have longer industry experience and greater financial, technical and other resources, which may enable them to react faster in changing market scenario and remain competitive. Moreover, the unorganized sector offers their products at highly competitive prices which may not be matched by us and consequently affect our volume of sales and growth prospects. Growing competition may result in a decline in our market share and may affect our margins which may adversely affect our business operations and our financial condition.

In particular, continued expansion increases the challenges involved in recruiting, training and retaining sufficient skilled technical, sales and management personnel; adhering to our quality and process execution standards; maintaining high levels of customer satisfaction; and developing and improving our internal administrative infrastructure, particularly our financial, operational, communications and other internal systems. Our financial condition, results of operations, cash flows or changes in shareholders' equity may appear materially different under IFRS than under Indian GAAP or our adoption of IFRS may adversely affect our reported results of operations or financial condition. In addition, if the stock markets experience a loss of investor confidence, the trading price of our Equity Shares could decline for reasons unrelated to our business, financial condition or operating results. The trading price of our Equity Shares might also decline in reaction to events that affect other companies in our industry even if these events do not directly affect us. Each of these factors, among others, could materially affect the price of our Equity Shares. There can be no assurance that an active trading market for our Equity Shares will develop or be sustained after this Issue, or that the price at which our Equity Shares are initially offered will correspond to the prices at which they will trade in the market subsequent to this Issue. For further details of the obligations and limitations of Market Makers please refer to the section titled "General Information - Details of the Market Making Arrangement for this Issue" on page 28 of this Draft Prospectus.

38. There are restrictions on daily movements in the price of the Equity Shares, which may adversely affect a shareholder's ability to sell, or the price at which it can sell, Equity Shares at a particular point in time.

Following the Issue, we will be subject to a daily "circuit breaker" imposed by BSE, which does not allow transactions beyond specified increases or decreases in the price of the Equity Shares. The percentage limit on our circuit breakers will be set by the stock exchanges based on the historical volatility in the price and trading volume of the Equity Shares. The BSE may not inform us of the percentage limit of the circuit breaker in effect from time to time and may change it without our knowledge. This circuit breaker will limit the upward and downward movements in the price of the Equity Shares. INDUSTRY OVERVIEW

THE INDIAN ECONOMY

The economy of India is the tenth-largest in the world by nominal GDP and the third-largest by purchasing power parity (PPP), with an estimated Gross Domestic Product (“GDP”) (purchasing power parity) of U.S.$ 4.661 trillion in 2012 (Source: CIA World Factbook 2012). On a per-capita-income basis, India ranked 141st by nominal GDP and 130th by GDP (PPP) in 2012, according to the IMF. India is the 19th-largest exporter and the 10th-largest importer in the world. Economic indicators suggest that the slowdown facing the Indian economy extended into 2013-14 with growth in Q1 falling to a 17-quarter low. The growth slowdown was broad-based reflecting moderation in the services and agriculture sectors. Various surveys indicate further drop in business confidence. The Reserve Bank’s Industrial Outlook Survey shows weakening of business sentiments in Q1 of 2013-14 to a three year low, though expectations showed improvement for Q2. The Indian economy continued to remain sluggish in Q4 of 2012-13. Modest improvement in growth is likely in H2 of 2013-14 on the back of a good monsoon and some improvements in industrial growth. A fuller recovery is likely to start taking shape towards the end of the fiscal year when current steps to clear the logjams constraining economic activity seep through the various inter-sectoral linkages in the economy. OVERVIEW OF THE INDIAN EDIBLE OIL INDUSTRY:

Climatic conditions in India favour growing a variety of oilseeds. On the demand side, a growing population and vastly varied dietary habits have ensured a thriving market for edible oil in the country. In fact, there is a substantial demand overhang, which is expected to continue for some years. At present, this is offset by imports that cater to almost half of the total domestic consumption. With cheap imports threatening to cripple the domestic industry, the government is walking a tightrope between filling the demand supply gap and the political need to keep the domestic industry in good health. Unorganized, medium and small players dominate the industry. Hence, quality remains a concern. There is need for better regulatory control to protect consumers. Despite the variety of oilseeds grown in India, the country imports a substantial quantity of edible oil, which also works out cheaper. Allied factors contributing to imports are the higher cost of cultivation in India and uneconomic oil extraction systems.

Oilseeds in India account for around 5.0 percent of the Gross National Product (GNP) and 14.0 percent of the country’s area under cultivation of crops. Castor, Groundnut, Linseed, Niger, Rapeseed, Mustard, Safflower, Sesame and Sunflower are some of the major oilseeds grown. India produces 10 percent of the world’s oilseeds, but has a low productivity of around 850-900 kg per hectare (compared to a world average of around 1,100-1,350 kg per hectare).

The amount of oil extracted from the seed varies with the type and quality of seed. In many cases, the oil recovery rate is upwards of 30.0 percent with Sesame accounting for a high 45.0 percent.

INDIAN EDIBLE OIL INDUSTRY IN GUJARAT

India, one of the biggest consumers of edible oil, currently imports 60% of its requirements from other countries; from South East Asia alone, it imports 75 per cent of this need, mainly sunflower and soyabean oils.

Gujarat has been the country’s top edible oil producer. In 2012-13, about 19.6 lakh hectares were brought under oilseeds – 14.6 lakh hectares in kharif and 5 lakh hectares in rabi, according to a Government official. The State consumes about 15 lakh tonnes of edible oils per annum. Against the average per capita consumption of 13 kg of edible oil in other States, Gujaratis consume 26 kg.

Historically, Gujarat mainly produced groundnut and sesame oil. Cottonseed, fodder for cattle, was not popular as a source of edible oil.

The 1990s saw a spurt in demand but fall in production due to a variety of reasons, including perennial droughts.

The increased demand was sought to be met by mixing preferred edible oils with cheaper ones such as castor, linseed and palmolein – the so-called 15-kg “disco tins” of ‘cocktail’ oil became a major issue in that decade. The slow shift from groundnut to cotton came via Africa. Most Gujaratis settled in Africa used cottonseed oil. In the 1970s, many had to return to India, especially from Uganda to escape the Idi Amin regime. Back in Gujarat, they fuelled the demand for cottonseed oil. These ‘foreign-returned’ sons-of-the-soil increased the demand for this oil, says Angshu Mallick, Chief Operating Officer, Adani Wilmar Ltd, a leading edible oil producer which markets its products under the Fortune brand.

Cottonseed oil is now produced in Gujarat, Maharashtra, Rajasthan, Andhra Pradesh and Punjab. The National Dairy Development Board also cut in by launching the “Dhara” brand of groundnut, mustard and refined vegetable oils for a few years to meet the growing demand.

While groundnut oil is still preferred for the flavour and the longer shelf-life of products cooked in it, a relatively cheaper cottonseed oil is used for preparing snacks.

However, health-conscious people have now started shifting to sunflower oil blends. This shift accelerated from 2008 as many people from other States settled in Gujarat.

“In the five years from 2008, our sales have increased from 300 tonnes a month to 2,000 tonnes in the State,” says Mallick. The industry has grown 30-40 per cent in this period.

THE INDIAN ECONOMY

The economy of India is the tenth-largest in the world by nominal GDP and the third-largest by purchasing power parity (PPP), with an estimated Gross Domestic Product ("GDP") (purchasing power parity) of U.S.$ 4.661 trillion in 2012 (Source: CIA World Factbook 2012). On a per-capita-income basis, India ranked 141st by nominal GDP and 130th by GDP (PPP) in 2012, according to the IMF. India is the 19th-largest exporter and the 10th-largest importer in the world. Economic indicators suggest that the slowdown facing the Indian economy extended into 2013-14 with growth in Q1 falling to a 17-quarter low. The growth slowdown was broad-based reflecting moderation in the services and agriculture sectors. Various surveys indicate further drop in business confidence. The Reserve Bank's Industrial Outlook Survey shows weakening of business sentiments in Q1 of 2013-14 to a three year low, though expectations showed improvement for Q2. The Indian economy continued to remain sluggish in Q4 of 2012-13. Modest improvement in growth is likely in H2 of 2013-14 on the back of a good monsoon and some improvements in industrial growth. A fuller recovery is likely to start taking shape towards the end of the fiscal year when current steps to clear the logjams constraining economic activity seep through the various inter-sectoral linkages in the economy. OVERVIEW OF THE INDIAN EDIBLE OIL INDUSTRY:

Climatic conditions in India favour growing a variety of oilseeds. On the demand side, a growing population and vastly varied dietary habits have ensured a thriving market for edible oil in the country. In fact, there is a substantial demand overhang, which is expected to continue for some years. At present, this is offset by imports that cater to almost half of the total domestic consumption. With cheap imports threatening to cripple the domestic industry, the government is walking a tightrope between filling the demand supply gap and the political need to keep the domestic industry in good health. Unorganized, medium and small players dominate the industry. Hence, quality remains a concern. There is need for better regulatory control to protect consumers. Despite the variety of oilseeds grown in India, the country imports a substantial quantity of edible oil, which also works out cheaper. Allied factors contributing to imports are the higher cost of cultivation in India and uneconomic oil extraction systems.

Oilseeds in India account for around 5.0 percent of the Gross National Product (GNP) and 14.0 percent of the country's area under cultivation of crops. Castor, Groundnut, Linseed, Niger, Rapeseed, Mustard, Safflower, Sesame and Sunflower are some of the major oilseeds grown. India produces 10 percent of the world's oilseeds, but has a low productivity of around 850-900 kg per hectare (compared to a world average of around 1,100-1,350 kg per hectare).

The amount of oil extracted from the seed varies with the type and quality of seed. In many cases, the oil recovery rate is upwards of 30.0 percent with Sesame accounting for a high 45.0 percent.

Consumption of edible oil in India - A paradigm shift

There has been paradigm shift in country's edible oil consumption since last few years and this is impacting the oilseeds cropping pattern, imports, exports and inter-state trade. Apart from consumption pattern, the production is also impacted by change in weather (including monsoon rains), production cost, minimum support price declared by government every year and global demand & supply scenario. It is necessary to discuss each point separately to understand how edible oil scene is changing in the country.

Demand / Consumption

India's consumption of edible oil has risen to around 17.5 million metric ton (mmt) in 2012-13 from 11.6 mmt in 2003-04, compounded annual growth rate (CAGR) of 4.6% during the period under consideration, according to data available from the Solvent Extractors Association of India (SEA). With growing population, India's demand for edible oil has been rising consistently with CAGR of 2.7% in the last three years and around 5.5% in the last five years. Apart from population growth, another significant factor that is impacting edible oil demand is the increase in disposable income amongst the growing middle class. This has led to change in the lifestyle, which has increased the consumption of edible oils.

The growth in consumption may have slowed in the last couple of years due to slowing economy, but it is not likely that the consumption may stabilise at any level. Even with current 3-year CAGR of 2.7%, the consumption is likely to cross 21 mmt by 2019-20. With economic growth expected to improve, the demand may be even more than current CAGR. A modest CAGR expectation of 4% by SEA shows that the demand is likely to touch 23 mmt by 2019-20.

Consumption Pattern

The major edible oilseeds that India cultivates are groundnut, mustard or rapeseed, niger seed, safflower, sesame seed, soybean and sunflower. Apart from this, the country also consumes edible oils like cottonseed oil, coconut oil and rice bran oil, which comes from processing of cotton, copra and rice bran respectively. Palm is another oil that is consumed, but it is not cultivated in the country, rather it is imported. Out of these edible oils, major consumption is of palm, soya and mustard.

Four western India states of Gujarat, Rajasthan, Maharashtra and Madhya Pradesh, consume one- third of total edible oil consumption in the country. As far as preference for edible oil is concerned, there has been marked switch from groundnut oil to cottonseed oil, soybean oil and sunflower oil in these four states. This change could be attributed to reasons like production cost, availability and other options available to growers which would increase their income.

In case of groundnut, despite CAGR of close to 21% in minimum support price in last three years, the production has been falling due to erratic monsoon and higher production cost compared to options of cotton and soya available to growers. The production of groundnut has been falling by average 8% since last five years leading to rise in oil prices. The demand for groundnut for direct human consumption has increased immensely. This has led to less groundnut being available for the oil crushing industry, leading to diminishing supply of groundnut oil.

The growth in consumption is also because of availability of palm oil through imports. Palm oil, being cheapest of all, is widely used for commercial purpose and by class of people who cannot afford higher priced groundnut, cotton, soy or mustard oils. Apart from soy and palm, the consumption of cottonseed is also on the rise as the crop offers higher returns in domestic as well as international markets due to huge demand from countries like China.

Edible oil processing

Edible oil processing consists of three operations: crushing and expelling (separating oil from the solids), solvent extraction (to chemically remove residual oil from the oilcake solids), and oil refining. In many countries, these three separate processing operations are conducted by one vertically integrated plant. In India, however, only a small share of oilseed production undergoes solvent extraction and oil refining. Instead, India's oilseeds processing sector is made up of the three groups viz Ghanis, solvent extractors and oil refiners engaged separately.

Edible oils constitute an important component of Indian households' expenditure on food. A large Population and steady economic growth are important contributors to India's increasing consumption and imports.

Production

Despite various incentives offered by government there has not been adequate growth in oilseeds production. In fact, according to figures available from SEA, the production of oilseeds has grown marginally by close to 2% from 2003-04 to 2012-13.

As far as production of edible oils from oilseeds is concerned it has shown a negative growth of 0.6% during the nine-year period from 2003-04 to 2012-13 as against CAGR of 4.6% in demand / consumption of edible oils. This has led to an increasing dependence on imports to make up for the shortfall between demand and supply.

One of the major factors that have contributed to fall in production of oil is shift from crop with higher oil recovery to crop with lower oil recovery. Crops like groundnut and sunflower has oil recovery ratio of 40% and 30% respectively; while cottonseed and soybean has oil recovery ratio of 11.5% and 17% only.

Surprisingly, government's measure to raise minimum support price (MSP) in last few years have also not yielded desired results. MSP of various oilseeds have risen by 11-21% compounded annually over the last three years. This growth has been in the range of 7-19% if five-year period is considered from 2007-08 to 2012-13.

Within edible oil basket, the production has shifted from groundnut and sunflower to soybean and mustard. Not surprisingly, demand is the major factor which is causing this shift in production pattern. Apart from the demand, other factors like production cost and weather uncertainty have also played their part.

Imports

India is the top importer of edible oil as its demand far exceeds availability from domestic sources. The gap between demand and production of oil is widening and this will continue in the foreseeable future. During oil year 2012 -2013, about 60% of India's edible oil consumption will be met by imports. Amongst major edible oils imported, share of palm oil is about 75% because of its abundant and relatively cheaper supply from nearby origins like Malaysia and Indonesia. Edible oil imports have grown by around CAGR of 7% during last three years and by 16% in last five years.

From November 2012 to July 2013 in the current oil marketing year, edible oil imports have risen by 10% to 7.8 million tonne from 7.1 million tonne in the corresponding period of last year.

The import basket has also seen changes in the last few years. While the share of refined oil has increased; the share of crude oil is falling; though it still remains at 77%. Similarly, the palm oil imports share has risen; while that of soft oil has fallen. Reduction in duty difference between crude and refined palmolein and inverted duty structure by palm oil exporting countries has led to higher imports of refined oil in India; thereby increasing share of refined oil as compared to crude oil, the SEA said in a recent statement.

INDIAN EDIBLE OIL INDUSTRY IN GUJARAT

India, one of the biggest consumers of edible oil, currently imports 60% of its requirements from other countries; from South East Asia alone, it imports 75 per cent of this need, mainly sunflower and soyabean oils.

Gujarat has been the country's top edible oil producer. In 2012-13, about 19.6 lakh hectares were brought under oilseeds – 14.6 lakh hectares in kharif and 5 lakh hectares in rabi, according to a Government official. The State consumes about 15 lakh tonnes of edible oils per annum. Against the average per capita consumption of 13 kg of edible oil in other States, Gujaratis consume 26 kg.

Historically, Gujarat mainly produced groundnut and sesame oil. Cottonseed, fodder for cattle, was not popular as a source of edible oil.

The 1990s saw a spurt in demand but fall in production due to a variety of reasons, including perennial droughts.

The increased demand was sought to be met by mixing preferred edible oils with cheaper ones such as castor, linseed and palmolein – the so-called 15-kg “disco tins” of ‘cocktail’ oil became a major issue in that decade. The slow shift from groundnut to cotton came via Africa. Most Gujaratis settled in Africa used cottonseed oil. In the 1970s, many had to return to India, especially from Uganda to escape the Idi Amin regime. Back in Gujarat, they fuelled the demand for cottonseed oil. These ‘foreign-returned’ sons-of-the-soil increased the demand for this oil, says Angshu Mallick, Chief Operating Officer, Adani Wilmar Ltd, a leading edible oil producer which markets its products under the Fortune brand.

Cottonseed oil is now produced in Gujarat, Maharashtra, Rajasthan, Andhra Pradesh and Punjab. The National Dairy Development Board also cut in by launching the “Dhara” brand of groundnut, mustard and refined vegetable oils for a few years to meet the growing demand.

While groundnut oil is still preferred for the flavour and the longer shelf-life of products cooked in it, a relatively cheaper cottonseed oil is used for preparing snacks.

However, health-conscious people have now started shifting to sunflower oil blends. This shift accelerated from 2008 as many people from other States settled in Gujarat.

“In the five years from 2008, our sales have increased from 300 tonnes a month to 2,000 tonnes in the State,” says Mallick. The industry has grown 30-40 per cent in this period.

Castor Seed - The Seed of Gujarat

Castor seed (Ricinus Communis) is an important non edible oilseed crop and is grown especially in arid and semi arid region. It is originated in the tropical belt of both India and Africa. It is produced mainly in 3 states in India - Gujarat, Rajasthan and Andhra Pradesh. The Indian variety of castor has an oil content of 48%, out of 48% about 42% of oil is being extracted and the cake retains the rest. Castor seed is a non-edible oilseed that has gained importance in the past decade due to its increasing use in industrial applications. India produces the lion's share of castor seed worldwide, accounting for more than 75% of the production, followed by China (10-12%) and Brazil (6-7%). The global castor seed production, which was 15.94 lakh tonne in 2010-11, surged dramatically in 2011-12 due to the record production in India. India is also the largest exporter of castor oil, accounting for over 88% share in the global exports. In India it is a kharif crop, sowing in July-August and arrivals from December onwards till March. Gujarat is the chief producing state, having a share of 86% of domestic production, followed by Andhra Pradesh and Rajasthan. Bag packed of castor seed contains 75kg by weight. Castor is basically a cash crop, with average 46% oil recovery. Castor seed production in India is around 9-10 lakh MT. Castor oil (extracted from castor seed) and its derivatives have vast and varied applications in the manufacturing of soaps, lubricants, hydraulic and brake fluids, paints, dyes, coatings, inks, cold resistant plastics, waxes and polishes, nylon, pharmaceuticals and perfumes. Castor oil is the largest vegetable oil exported out of India. India is the biggest exporter of castor oil holding about 70% share of the international trade in this commodity followed by China & Brazil. Castor cake is an excellent fertilizer because of high content of nitrogen (6.4%), phosphoric acid (2.55%), potash (1%), and moisture retention capability.

MARKET POTENTIAL

Following China, India is the world's second largest consumer of edible oil with an annual consumption of 15 million metric tons. Edible oils have a penetration level of 98% of Indian households, and belong to the basic foods category. However, India's per capita consumption of 12 kg per annum is relatively low by world standards. With rising population, coupled with gradually increasing household incomes, this number is sure to rise in the future. By 2015, the total edible oil market is stated to touch 17 million metric tones in volume terms, and Rs. 70,000 Crores ($ 15 Billion) in value terms.

With the ever increasing health awareness among consumers, and greater government regulation, the market is witnessing a high growth of almost 25%-30% in packaged / branded oils. Urbanisation is also growing at a very fast rate and this has meant increased demand for packaged edible oils. Oasis wishes to exploit this market trend.

Over the next few years, Oasis envisions a tremendous growth in packaged/branded edible oils. The new Food Safety and Standards Act of India 2006, has led down stricter policy measures relating to packaging, labelling and quality of food products. This will undoubtedly lead to a huge rise in the demand for Oasis' products.

Another reason the company foresees a rise in demand for its products, is related to the government's heavy emphasis on the Food Processing Sector. We believe that the food processing industry will witness a very high growth trajectory in the coming years. This will indirectly drive the demand for edible oils which form an essential raw material for this industry.

Business Strategy:

The business strategy has been consumer centric to bring them value for money by imbibing best practices and processes aiming at all round innovation through use of technology and resources to deliver and contribute maximum and sustained returns to all stakeholders. We intend to pursue the following strategies in order to consolidate our position and grow further:

Material:

The principle material required is refined oil. These material is available in plenty in and around local markets.

Competition

The Indian plastic market is largely fragmented comprising of organized and unorganized sectors. The rates vary depending upon the demand supply pattern prevailing in the market. Geographies also play a vital role in deciding the rates. The produce is marketable in the open market. We face competition from local manufactures. Our wide range of products with better hygiene consideration, low cost provides us an edge in the competition.

Marketing Arrangement

In order to exploit the double digit growth in branded edible oils, the company has aggressive plans to expand its marketing network in Gujarat. Simultaneously Oasis will expand to different geographies by setting up a comprehensive marketing and distribution network in surrounding States of Maharashtra, Madhya Pradesh and Rajasthan. Particularly, the company will appoint new Distributors/Dealers, and C&F agents, across these states. The Company will establish warehouses and depots in larger towns in these states. In order to fulfill its new growth strategy the company has so far recruited about 50 sales and marketing personnel across all levels. These sales executives will serve each distributor/dealer. The company will put a great thrust on International customers by directly marketing its products to them by giving them reliable delivery and quality. The marketing strategy of the company is the combination of direct marketing, using the existing distribution network and sales force. Conversation with customers on an individual basis, educating them, guiding them and campaigning for the company's products all the year round is part of the strategy. We support our marketing efforts with the activities at the grass root level through field work by maintaining regular contacts and meetings.

Contravention of the provisions of the Payment of Bonus Act, 1965 by a Company is punishable with imprisonment or a fine, against persons in charge of, and responsible to the Company for the conduct of the business of the Company at the time of contravention.

General

Competition Act, 2002

The Competition Act 2002 (the “Competition Act”) aims to prevent anti-competitive practices that cause or are likely to cause an appreciable adverse effect on competition in the relevant market in India. The Competition Act regulates anti-competitive agreements, abuse of dominant position and combinations. The Competition Act, although enacted in 2002, is being brought into force in a phased manner. Provisions relating to anti-competitive agreements and abuse of dominant position were brought into force with effect from May 20, 2009 and thereafter the Competition Commission of India (the “Competition Commission”) became operational from May 20, 2009. Sections 5 and 6 (dealing with combinations, mergers and acquisitions) are already notified by the Gol on June 01, 2011. The Competition Act also provides that the Competition Commission has the jurisdiction to inquire into and pass orders in relation to an anti-competitive agreement, abuse of dominant position or a combination, which even though entered into, arising or taking place outside India or signed between one or more non-Indian parties, but causes an appreciable adverse effect in the relevant market in India. Recently, the Lok Sabha has passed a bill to transfer the pending monopolies and restrictive trade practices cases under the Consumer Protection Act, 1986 to the Competition Appellate Tribunal. Once this bill is notified the Competition Appellate Tribunal will take up the pending cases of unfair trade practices under the Consumer Protection Act, 1986. This bill will replace the ordinance which was introduced on October 14, 2009 to make the Monopolies and Restrictive Trade Practice Commission non functional.

The Indian Contract Act, 1872

The Indian Contract Act codifies the way in which a contract may be entered into, executed, implementation of the provisions of a contract and effects of breach of a contract. It provides a framework of rules and regulations that govern formation and performance of contract.

Registrations under the applicable Shops & Commercial Establishments Acts of the respective States in which Our Company has an established place of business/ office (“Shops Act”)

The Shops Act provides for the regulation of conditions of work in shops, commercial establishments, restaurants, theatres and other establishments. The Act is enforced by the Chief Inspector of Shops (CIS) and various inspectors under the supervision and control of Deputy/Assistant Labour Commissioners of the concerned District, who in turn functions under the supervision of Labour Commissioner.

The Companies Act, 1956

The Act deals with laws relating to companies and certain other associations. It was enacted by the parliament in 1956. The Companies Act primarily regulates the formation, financing, functioning and winding up of companies. The Act prescribes regulatory mechanism regarding all relevant aspects including organizational, financial and managerial aspects of companies. Regulation of the financial and management aspects constitutes the main focus of the Act. In the functioning of the corporate sector, although freedom of companies is important, protection of the investors and shareholders, on whose funds they flourish, is equally important. The Companies Act plays the balancing role between these two competing factors, namely, management autonomy and investor protection.

The Companies Act, 2013 (to the extent notified)

Foreign investment in India is primarily governed by the provisions of the Foreign Exchange Management Act, 1999 ("FEMA") and the rules and regulations promulgated there under. The RBI, in exercise of its powers under FEMA, has notified the Foreign Exchange Management (Transfer or Issue of Security by a Person Resident Outside India) Regulations, 2000 ("FEMA Regulations") which prohibit, restrict and regulate, transfer or issue of securities, to a person resident outside India. In respect of all industries not specified under the automatic route, and in respect of investments in excess of the specified sectoral limits under the automatic route, approval for such investment may be required from the FIPB and/or the RBI. Further, FIIs may purchase shares and convertible debentures of an Indian company under the portfolio investment scheme through registered brokers on recognized stock exchanges in India. Regulation 1 (4) of Schedule II of the FEMA Regulations provides that the total holding by each FII or SEBI approved sub-account of an FII shall not exceed 10% of the total paid-up equity capital of an Indian company or 10% of the paid-up value of each series of convertible debentures issued by an Indian company and the total holdings of all FIIs and sub accounts of FIIs added together shall not exceed 24% of the paid-up equity capital or paid-up value of each series of convertible debentures. INDUSTRY OVERVIEW

OVERVIEW OF THE INDIAN EDIBLE OIL INDUSTRY:

Climatic conditions in India favour growing a variety of oilseeds. On the demand side, a growing population and vastly varied dietary habits have ensured a thriving market for edible oil in the country. In fact, there is a substantial demand overhang, which is expected to continue for some years. At present, this is offset by imports that cater to almost half of the total domestic consumption. With cheap imports threatening to cripple the domestic industry, the government is walking a tightrope between filling the demand supply gap and the political need to keep the domestic industry in good health. Unorganized, medium and small players dominate the industry. Hence, quality remains a concern. There is need for better regulatory control to protect consumers. Despite the variety of oilseeds grown in India, the country imports a substantial quantity of edible oil, which also works out cheaper. Allied factors contributing to imports are the higher cost of cultivation in India and uneconomic oil extraction systems.

Oilseeds in India account for around 5.0 percent of the Gross National Product (GNP) and 14.0 percent of the country's area under cultivation of crops. Castor, Groundnut, Linseed, Niger, Rapeseed, Mustard, Safflower, Sesame and Sunflower are some of the major oilseeds grown. India produces 10 percent of the world's oilseeds, but has a low productivity of around 850-900 kg per hectare (compared to a world average of around 1,100-1,350 kg per hectare).

The amount of oil extracted from the seed varies with the type and quality of seed. In many cases, the oil recovery rate is upwards of 30.0 percent with Sesame accounting for a high 45.0 percent.
